

H&R Block unit opens office in Pleasant Prairie

Publisher

The Business Journal of Milwaukee

Dates

The publisher's page shows: published January 31, 2002; updated February 1, 2002. The saved copy reproduced on the next page is dated Friday, February 1, 2002. It was saved on December 9, 2008; that is a capture date, not a publication date.

Permission

Reproduced with permission.

About this reproduction

The next page reproduces the complete article text, word for word, reformatted for readability. It is a text reproduction, not a facsimile of the publisher's page. Advertising, navigation, related stories, and scripts are omitted.

Historical context

Titles, company descriptions, and figures are as reported in 2002. The article identifies Steve Naish as vice president of operations for MyBenefitSource.

Original article

<https://www.bizjournals.com/milwaukee/stories/2002/01/28/daily57.html> (subscription may be required). Earlier address:

<http://milwaukee.bizjournals.com/milwaukee/stories/2002/01/28/daily57.html>.

Summary and context

<https://stevenaish.com/in-the-news/> and <https://stevenaish.com/experience/career-history/#mbs>

The Business Journal of Milwaukee

Friday, February 1, 2002

H&R Block unit opens office in Pleasant Prairie

MyBenefitSource, a unit of H&R Block, has opened the company's first regional service center to house payroll service representatives and administer payroll for 270 clients in the Midwest. The service center is in Pleasant Prairie.

Atlanta-based MyBenefitSource is an online provider of payroll and benefit administration services.

The Pleasant Prairie location was selected to meet the needs of the increased client base in the Midwest, said Steve Naish, vice president of operations for MyBenefitSource. The company will open a total of five regional service centers across the United States.